

PRESS RELEASE

Athens, 23/02/09

Athens Airways received its second aircraft

On Wednesday 18th of February Athens Airways received its second aircraft, which landed at Athens International Airport "Eleftherios Venizelos".

The aircraft is an ERJ-145 type EMBRAER and is the second out of four airplanes, which Athens Airways has ordered until now. With the above aircraft, Athens Airways begins flights to Mytilene on Thursday 26th of February, as well as to Thessaloniki on the 12th of March, expanding very fast its flights.

Athens Airways named the aircraft Nikos Eggonopoulos, wishing in this way to transmit art and creativity to every part in Greece and broadening further the inspiration of naming its first aircraft after the famous Greek painter Yannis Gaitis.

Within the next few months, Athens Airways is waiting for the rest two airplanes to add to its fleet, completing in this way its route schedule to big towns and islands all over Greece.
